7 "(7) Additional preferences. Up to 5 additional preference
8 points may be awarded for unique categories based on an 9 applicant's experience or background as identified by the 10 commission.

11 (8) Scoring of preferences. The commission shall give 12 preference for original appointment to persons designated in 13 item (1) by adding to the final grade that they receive 5
14 points for the recognized preference achieved. The commission
15 shall determine the number of preference points for each
16 category except (1). The number of preference points for each 17 category shall range from 0 to 5. In determining the number of 18 preference points, the commission shall prescribe that if a 19 candidate earns the maximum number of preference points in all 20 categories, that number may not be less than 10 nor more than 21 30. The commission shall give preference for original 22 appointment to persons designated in items (2) through (7) by 23 adding the requisite number of points to the final grade for 24 each recognized preference achieved. The numerical result
